

Man in trouble for accidentally saying hes a magician

"I am not actually a magician, what more do you want me to say?"

It all started when John texted a friend. Johns text read as follows "A guy was just passing my on the street and he said that i am a magician." Johns text was just a autocorrect mistake but he didn't notice. Johns friend Tim tried to text John back to ask if it was a mistake. After 30 minutes of no response, Tim thought it was not a mistake.

Johns friend Tim recieved the text about a magician and ran with it. Tim spread the rumor and it became a widespread fact that John was a magician. Johns started recieving calls about childrens birthdays, people wanted to hire him. John answered all the calls and said that he was infact not a magician. This only made the problem worse, now everyone in his small hometown now was extremely angry. Chaos ensued in town.
